

Post-traumatic Integration

Low-level Psychosocial Support and Intervention for Refugees

The still face experiment

Part of the exercise is to watch a short video (available on YouTube) showing the still face experiment. After viewing, think about how it relates to PFA and/or to personal experiences in crisis situations

Module	Submodules	Group size	Duration
• Intervention	• Psychological & Social First Aid	• Individual • Small group	• 15 min

Keywords

Still face experiment, PFA (Psychological First Aid).

Aims

To raise the awareness of good communication in PFA.

Participants

Individual or group.

Description

Participant(s) watch a short video demonstrating Still face experiment. It is a well-known experiment in psychology which involves a baby and his/her parent. After some short interaction the parent stops giving back any verbal or nonverbal signals. Soon after, the baby gets visibly distressed. After the video a participant is encouraged to think and write down thoughts (individual on paper, group on flip chart through group discussion) on following questions:

- how did it make them feel watching the video?
- what is the relation with basic PFA principles?
- how does it relate to their own personal experiences with people in crisis?

Material

video (YouTube), pen and paper, flipchart

Method

Observation and discussion.

Advice for Facilitators

Facilitate with additional questions or encourage them to try it for themselves.

Source (APA)

[UMass Boston]. (2009, Nov 30). Still Face Experiment: Dr. Edward Tronick [Video File]. Retrieved from <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=apzXGEBZht0>

Handouts

Video. View the link here.

Contributor

Aleksandra Stevanović (MEDRI).

CC - Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivatives

<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-nd/3.0/>

The still face experiment. Retrieved Sunday January 11, 2026, from :
<https://onlinematerial.posttraumatic-integration.eu/courses/PTIP108/>

Co-funded by the Erasmus+ Programme
of the European Union

The European Commission support for the production of this publication does not constitute an endorsement of the contents which reflects the views only of the authors, and the Commission cannot be held responsible for any use which may be made of the information contained therein

<https://posttraumatic-integration.eu/>