

When Sleep Can't Come

Our autonomic nervous system can be overstimulated by trauma. That means that your arousal levels are chronically high, so they trigger and have serious impact to one's body. And the body needs soothing and care, otherwise the body don't have the reserve of enough energy to help you to heal. And sleep is an important precursor.

Description

My ten things to do when I can't sleep.

Before you try this strategy, come up with 10 things you hate to do around your home, e.g. cleaning and defrosting the freezer, cleaning the toilet, balancing a checkbook, or similar. Two hours before going to bed start to prepare yourself – take a warm bath or shower, get into your sleeping clothes, stop all liquids intake, . Now do a relaxing activity – read, knit, listen soft music. Don't watch the TV or news. Once you get to bed you have 30 minutes to get to sleep. You may choose to do a relaxation exercise during these thirty minutes. If you are not asleep in 30 minutes, you have to get up and do the first thing on your list.

Make your list NOW. These are often ten things that you hate to do the most. They must be things to do inside of your home and will not wake up others who are sleeping.

So, the number one of the ten things to do list must be the one you »hate« the most you will always start with this one when you can't sleep. Continue doing the things on your list until you go to sleep and stay sleep. Each night you can't sleep begin again at the top of the list. Even if you have cleaned your refrigerator every night of five nights, on a six night you are to clean it again.
